

From Pandemic to Pedagogy

Looking Ahead to What Really Matters

Training and support for 2021/22

With light now starting to show at the end of the last year's educational tunnel, we imagine you'll soon be thinking about staff CPD for the 2021 – 22 school year.

Alongside the challenges of re-establishing normal school life, we see the post-lockdown return to schools as an opportunity to re-focus on some of the things that really matter in education. Schools don't need simply to build back the same: out of the COVID-19 crisis comes an opportunity to re-think. Our training and support programmes can help you do just this.

P4C Plus goes beyond traditional P4C - it aims to transform teaching and learning across the curriculum through our 6-strand pedagogical framework and our innovative scheme for metacognition: Thinking Moves A – Z.

Thinking Moves A – Z is a clear, comprehensive and easily adopted scheme for the teaching of thinking and the development of metacognition. It is a powerful tool in any lesson across the curriculum, as well as an enhancement to the practice of P4C.

Our programmes build on a strong evidence base of P4C's benefits for students' development and personal well-being, as well as for teacher motivation. The Education Endowment Foundation recognises metacognition as a powerful tool for teaching and learning, especially for students from disadvantaged backgrounds.

We offer a range of training options depending on your school's priorities. All are available for whole school teams, or for individual teachers.
